9th Grade English Classes Take Tour

The 9th Grade English classes, Mrs. E. L. McCraw, from the Appomattox High School took a look at the operations on Thursday, November 11 at the TIMES-VIRGINIAN. The English classes investigated how newspaper printing procedures to supplement unit on "Newspapers", the camera which takes pictures of printed materials and photos seemed to get the most attention, but for some students, the older printing methods proved to be interesting, including some lead type and lead castings used mostly in former days before the current offset printing process revolutionized production of newspapers. In the above picture, there are shown the 25 students, with Mrs. McCraw, who are in the Second Period English Class.

In the picture, Mrs. McCraw is shown with students from her Third Period class who toured the TIMES-VIRGINIAN. In the next edition of the TIMES-VIRGINIAN, we plan to run the pictures of the three classes from the Intermediate School who toured the business on Friday. A total of 149 students who are taught English by Mrs. McCraw toured the TIMES-VIRGINIAN on Thursday and Friday.

Completion Near For Railroad Bridge

Workmen Friday (above) kept at a steady pace in an effort to complete the concrete span over the N&W Railroad on Ferguson Street at the southwest boundary of the Town of Appomattox. The wooden forms in the foreground outline an apron on the south end of the span. The structure, being completed by Robertsons Construction Co., Roanoke, is 179 feet, two inches in length and replaces a bridge with timber flooring built in 1927. Surface treatment of the approaches is scheduled for this week (possibly Wednesday) with an opening date for traffic set for the end of the month. The bridge is about two months ahead of schedule, according to Leon Edmunds, Highway Construction Inspector. He indicates that the Va. Dept. of Highways is very much pleased with the progress on the bridge and with the quality of work being done by the construction company. Approx. cost of the structure -- $138,000.
